SEVEN KEYS TO LETTING GO WORKSHEET

step 1: connect with the finished result
Do you want to change your space or get more organized?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

What are you making space for?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

How will your space look, feel and function when you're finished?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

List in vivid detail the benefits you will realize when you are more organized. How will you feel?
What will you be able to start doing or do more of?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

step 2: call upon past successes
Record the benefits you realized last time you let go of unwanted and unneeded things. Record how you felt afterwards; lighter, calm, more positive, energized, relaxed, etc. Add everything that comes to mind—all those good and happy feelings—below.
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

step 3: prioritize
Which belongings in your home are most important to you?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
step 3: prioritize (continued)
Which activities in your life do you want more time or space for?
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

step 4: decide how much is enough
List below the items you love and those you want to make sure you have plenty of. Then, for each item, write down how much is enough. Be concrete. For example, twenty t-shirts are enough.
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

step 5: anticipate and remove your obstacles
In the space below, list the items you anticipate will be difficult to let go of and why. Use the strategies in the article to overcome your obstacles and create the benefits you outlined in step 1.
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________

step 6: create results quickly
Now it’s time to take action! Go into your space and start paring down. Then, come back here and jot down all the “positive” feelings you experienced as a result of your efforts!
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
_______________________________________________________________________________
step 7: keep building on your successes

Keep taking action and record your on-going positive results and how you feel about them below. Use your worksheet to keep moving in the direction of your goals!

_______________________________________________________________________________

_______________________________________________________________________________

_______________________________________________________________________________

_______________________________________________________________________________

_______________________________________________________________________________

ONCE YOU GET STARTED, KEEP TAKING ACTION!

🌟 Get ongoing organizing ideas by signing up for the simplify 101 newsletter or weekly quick tip. Visit http://www.simplify101.com/organizing-tips-newsletter.php to sign up.

🌟 For a more in-depth discussion on organizing obstacles and how to get around them, join the online workshop Organizing 101: Learn how to Get Organized. Learn about simplify 101’s online organizing workshops by visiting http://www.simplify101.com/online-workshop-tour.php.

🌟 Find out how in-home organizing services or organizing coaching can help you at http://www.simplify101.com/organizing-services.php.